Aix is not difficult to remember, because it is so much more than a memory. It is turning a kaleidoscope and watching the green of the Cours Mirabeau melting into the blue of the sky.

The memory of Aix is the sound of the music of voices blending with the gurgle of fountains, and the roar of a passing Deux Chevaux.
Aix is a portrait of elegance framed in green. Aix is a little boy walking home with a huge loaf of bread... old men in berets playing boule... a café in the rain filled with cigarette smoke and the smell of express coffee.

The memory is of long afternoons spent on the Cours, while other cours passed forgotten... of the ever changing face of Mount Sainte Victoire... of the green on green of the countryside.
Aix is beautiful and serene and gay. The city sings all day - sleeps most of the night - and shudders when the Mistral howls through the sky.

The kaleidoscope turns, and the colors merge with the smell of fish and flowers and baking bread that floats in the narrow streets.
Aix is this – and it is more. It is extraordinary, absurd, and easily loved. More than a memory...
Aix is...everything.
Les Professeurs
The academic year 1965-1966 will be one that will be remembered as a year of introspection and weighing of values due to the crisis in American life exemplified by both internal integration and the crisis in Southeast Asia. This situation has been brought home to students of this year both through the local press and other media of communication as well as through their meetings with their French friends. For many this has been a shocking experience but there is no doubt that it has been a very salutary one, - one of the advantages of coming abroad? With it has come the realization that not everyone can be in agreement all the time and a similar realization that a hard choice must be made between being popular and pursuing a policy that is right. There is a growing up to a realization of your place in the world and the responsibilities that it entails.

For some being abroad has not only been a place of learning but also a place for escape, for others it has been a place for enjoying new sights and visiting new places and for a third, and very special group, it has been an opportunity for intellectual excitement and development, leading to the discovery of new ideas and new ways of thinking about problems and circumstances that hardly would have been possible back in the United States. I think that we can say with a certain amount of certainty that for most of you it has been a vehicle for coming into the realization of your responsibilities and that this evolution has probably been quicker and more profound than if you had stayed at home.

The pages that have been composed and which follow are the work of a dedicated group of your fellows who have been inspired with a sense of creation and who have also felt a sense of responsibility to produce for you a record to which you can refer over the years.

We have enjoyed having you with us at the Institute. This year you have been described by all who have known you as a very pleasant and a very likeable group and, above all, good representatives of the United States who were interested in people and who made a special effort to meet the French and make friends with them. In this you have reflected credit not only on yourselves but all who have been associated with you. We trust that you will follow this path when you go home and that you will continue to radiate the esprit de chaleur humaine which you have spread here. We also hope that you will be a means of communication and that since you have had the advantage to learn things about life, civilization, art, and politics abroad that on your return home you will communicate some of what you have learnt to other Americans who have not had the advantages and opportunities that you have had in study abroad. We trust that your year of study in Aix will always remain a treasured memory and an insight that will help you the rest of your lives.

With all our best wishes for the future, and our hopes to welcome you again to Aix one day soon.

Cordially,

Herbert Maza
Director
"And their tears flowed to the feet of the benevolent Mr. Booth..."
Ah, there were the days when we slept through our midterms, forgot to go to class, or got stuck in West Berlin with no marks in hand. It was unnecessary to drown ourselves in the nearest fountain — we just had to "go and see Mr. Booth".

For the wit at the black Monday assemblies — ("Don't asphyxiate yourself — it's a nasty mess...") for his encouragement in the face of academic disaster — (Last year people did pass the certificates...) for the days without number when we left our successes and problems on his desk, we dedicate La Cigale of 1966 to Mr. Amos Booth, in gratitude for his advice, encouragement, and understanding.
